Notes From the Courts. The trial of Thomas J. Taylor, under indictment for the murder of his wife, last September, has been set for Monday next before Judge Cole.
The prosecution of correspondents, brokers

The prosecution of correspondents, brokers and officials of the American Sugar Refining Co, will probably not be brought up before April 22 and may be delayed till the first week in May. It is understood that the cases of Brokers Macartney, Chapman and Seymour will be beard first, then Correspondents Edwards and Shriver and finally President Havemeyer and Treasurer Searles.

Free spent Havemeyer and Treasurer Searles.

A verdict for $3,000 against the Ana-costia and Potomac Railway Company was rendered yesterday in Judge Bing-ham's court in favor of Heineman Klein, the Baltimore drammer, who was burt by a street car near the Baltimore and Poto-mac depot three years ago. The suit of Charles C. Langley against John O. Crown, to recover $5,000, land and rents, which was begun before Jufge Binghor vestorder, was now swited.

John O. Crown, to recover $5,000, land and rents, which was begun before Judge Bingham yesterday, was non-suited.

Mrs. Anne M. Coumbe yesterday applied for letters of administration on the estate of her husband, the late John T. Coumbe. She says his personalty amounts to $8,000 in cash, $1,500 in stocks and $600 in furniture, &c. His debts are only $510. The heirs are herself and six sons—Albert, Oscar, Robert, Willie, Arthur and Eppa. Mr. Coumbe died March T.

Mr. Frankin Schneider and wife yesterday conveyed the Cairo Flats property, at Sixteenth and Q streets, to J. J. Darlington and George E. Fleming, in trust for the Cairo Flats Apartment Company, a Virginia corporation, with $800,000 capital. It is understood that Mr. Schneider holds nearly, if not quite, all the stock.

Decision to That Effect Rendered by the Judiciary.

The Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals Has Rendered a Decision Sustaining the Constitutionality of the Election Law.

The case in which the Walton law was tested was one brought against the board of supervisors of Brunswick County to prevent payment of the expenses of execution of this law. The main contentions against the law were that its provisions for special constables and for voting booths in which ignorant voters were to be assisted were illegal.

The court holds, however, that the voting booth is well adapted to aid ignorant voters, who, either from physical or intellectual blindness, are unable to read. Such persons, the court holds, are properly entitled to vote, as there is no educational qualification in the Constitution, and without assistance they would not be able to vote. The court says the law imposes a great trust upon the special constables in instructing and assisting voters, but it is not to be presumed that the trust will be abused, and that ignorant voters will be deduced, estopped and defrauded. It cannot be doubted, says the decision, that the purpose of the legislature was to frame a law to promote fair elections.

The court urges the necessity of honest

The court urges the necessity of honest elections and the protection of ignorant voters from undue persuasion, and holds that the law seeks to accomplish these desirable ends.
